

Hospital board hears concerns about helipad

By Rhonda Smyth
CV&T News Editor

A public hearing was held Tuesday at Marcum & Wallace Memorial Hospital to provide information about the construction of a helipad on hospital grounds.

Rodney Davis called the meeting to order and introduced John Isfort, Chairman of the Board of Directors for Estill Medical Services who gave an overview of the plan.

"Our goals are always patient-centered. It benefits patients to have rapid transportation to interventional facilities," Isfort explained. "Any one of us could need this service at any time."

He said that the old helipad could no longer be used since it was on property where Irvine Municipal Utilities is building a wastewater treatment plant.

Isfort explained that people with traumatic injury sustained in car wrecks, falls or from gunshot wounds, as well as those who have heart attacks, or strokes are the ones who need intervention fast.

"In rural areas, we have a higher chance of dying. In most of rural eastern Kentucky it takes about five and one-half hours to transfer patients to a trauma center," he said.

It currently takes MWMH about 32 minutes to transport a patient to the University of Kentucky Trauma Center.

He said that if the helipad is located on the hill above the hospital, it will mean faster transfer of patients by helicopter.

Linda Poore, a resident of Woodspoint Drive, which deadends near where the helipad will be build, asked to be heard.

She read a prepared letter about how she worries about damages to her property and how the helipad would effect her property values.

Estill JROTC places first in Raider competition

The Estill County JROTC Cadets competed in their first Raider competition at Henry Clay High School recently and took first place over all.

Led by Lt. Col. Lance Patterson, the cadets competed in eight events, placed first in seven and second in the last one.

"This is a select group of cadets who perform extracurricular activities that are mentally and physically challenging," Patterson said.

This is the first year the school has participated in the JROTC program. There are five classes of students totaling 170 in the group.

"The program is designed to make the participants better citizens. We teach life skills, healthy lifestyle, physical fitness, responsibility and duty. We don't teach Army tactics or warrior stuff," Patterson explained.

The students, dressed in Army fatigues, were preparing to go on a march last Friday. They each were carrying packs that weighed at least 30 pounds a piece.

Cadet Commander Trevor Charles talked about what JROTC means to him.

"It means a lot to me. I have always been a leader, but the colonel's actions have influenced me and made me a better leader," he said. "He has taught me good life lessons and discipline."

Ivan Pomeroy is the cadet sergeant major of the group.

"It gives everybody a way to be active and keeps us from being lazy and gives us leadership and study skills," Pomeroy explained. "We learn how to talk to people and how to handle ourselves in a group. It keeps me from being so nervous."

Patterson said he and his co-teacher, First Sergeant Jim Johnson, plan to have more classes next year.

"Currently we are co-teachers but next year we hope to have First Sergeant Johnson teaching freshmen and sophomores and I will teach junior and seniors," Patterson said.

The cadets have also participated in competition at George Rogers Clark High School in Winchester where they placed third out of seven schools.

On this day, the group was hiking up the hill behind the high school and planned to end up at the Kentucky River Park on Dry Ridge where Patterson said he would teach the cadets to cross a creek with a rope.

Talking and laughing like they were going on a picnic the group shouldered their packs and set out.

Easter Bunny to raise money for Relay for Life

Hopping into Dollar General this weekend

"Friends and Family Fighting for a Cure" is just that, a team of friends and family who have joined together to raise money to help find a cure for cancer.

Last year was the group's first year as a Relay for Life team, but they were the top money-raising team in Estill County.

Sherri Cole is one of its organizers, thanks in part to the encouragement of her daughter, Tabitha Stepp, who said, "Mom, let's do a team."

Cole has had many loved ones touched by the disease. One of her best friends passed away of ovarian cancer. Several family members have been diagnosed with it too, including her mother and a sister who are survivors. Her husband's cousin and aunt died with cancer in the past year.

Cole says the team worked hard to raise money last year. They accepted donations for a drawing to win a painted barn quilt square. They held bake sales and sold suckers.

Suspected burglar caught

By Rhonda Smyth
CV&T News Editor

An Irvine man implicated in several home burglaries was arrested on March 21 by Estill Deputy Sheriff Randy Farthing.

Don Alan Adams, 28, of 530 Broadway is accused of entering the home of Bill Friend on Jodi Lane through an unlocked back window and removing an undetermined amount of coins.

Farthing's report states that Adams told him that when he entered the house an alarm sounded so he grabbed the change and exited through the back door. Farthing's report states that Adams had the change on his person when he was arrested. He also stated that Adams was cooperative and wrote a confession after being read his Miranda rights.

He was lodged in the Estill County Jail.

On March 25, Estill Deputy Sheriff Russell "Doc" Morris served a warrant charging Adams with another crime, receiving stolen property less than $10,000.

This crime occurred on March 22. Morris stated on his report that he had recovered several tools that Adams had sold. They were reported stolen from Fred Arthur's garage on Locomotive Street.

Morris also charged Adams with one count of first degree burglary for allegedly breaking into the home of Bill Friend on Jodi Lane on Feb. 18 and removing several items of jewelry. The jewelry was sold to Cash in a Dash for scrap gold. Some old coins were recovered.

Adams was charged with receiving stolen property in connection with another burglary that took place on March 21.

Felicia Mays of High Street reported to the sheriff's office that someone had stolen some of her handmade agate jewelry. Morris recovered some of the jewelry at Adams' home.

Adams is charged with first degree burglary for allegedly breaking into the home of Dean Dobson on Broadway and removing some firearms. Dobson reported the incident on March 22, but told the deputy it happened on March 21.

Morris recovered two of the firearms that Adams had allegedly sold.

Adams pleaded not guilty in Estill District Court on March 26. Bail was set at $50,000. His next court appearance is scheduled for April 4 when a preliminary hearing will be conducted.

Morris asked that if anybody living in the vicinity of the burglaries reported here, has had anything stolen to please contact him at 723-2323. He may have recovered your stolen items.

Another man was also arrested in related crimes.

Morris said that Christopher Bishop, 35, of Waco, sold rings that were taken in the Friend burglary to Cash in a Dash. He is charged with receiving stolen property.

He is also charged with complicity to commit burglary for allegedly dropping Adams off at a home that he burglarized and then going back later to pick him up.

Bail was set at $10,000.

Her mom made a yo-yo quilt and they auctioned it off. The group participated in the Relay for Life car show, and individuals made cash donations.

The team has been busy gearing up for this year's event, and their goal is to raise even more money than last year. They've already held a cookout and bake sale, and they've sold blue and white cancer awareness bracelets.

This Saturday the group will be hosting a fundraiser at the Dollar General on Richmond Road beside Advance Auto Parts. The Easter bunny will be hopping by the store for a photo shoot.

Anyone who would like to have their picture made with the Easter bunny may stop by on Saturday, March 31, between 10 a.m.-3 p.m., or on Sunday, April 1, between 1 and 4 p.m. For a $5 donation, individuals will receive a 4x6 picture with the Easter bunny.

The group will also be holding a bake sale. All proceeds will go to the Relay for Life.

Scott Jones shows a drawing of the proposed site for a helipad near the hospital. He explained to some concerned residents that it won't be as near their homes as they think it will.

HELIPAD: Grant needed to pay for construction that would help the people of the county.

Scott Jones has been working closely with the board and made a drawing showing the site.

He assured Poore and one of her neighbors, Joy Hall, who also attended, that the helipad would not be as close to their homes as it seems.

An access road will be built between the hospital and the helipad.

"The road will be built first so we won't have to use your street to transport materials or equipment," Jones said.

A pilot from one of the medical helicopter companies talked about how the aircrafts will approach the new landing area.

"We always land into the wind so we wouldn't be flying over your houses, we would fly in over the hospital," he said.

He also told them that the company has insurance and if the helicopters caused any damages, an adjustor would check the damages and the insurance would pay for them.

The hospital is applying for a USDA Rural Development Facilitites grant to help pay for the helipad.

MWMH CEO Susan Starling said that if they don't receive the grant they won't be able to build the helipad.

"It will cost between $80,000 and $140,000 to build. We can't afford to do it without the grant money," Starling said.

She also said that the local governments will provide equipment and do some work as part of the "in kind" match for the grant.

"This is not a Marcum & Wallace project. This is a community project. There won't be any gain for the hospital except to be able to take care of patients faster," Starling said.

At the end of the question and answer session the meeting was adjourned.

Local man injured in cycle wreck

By Rhonda Smyth
CV&T News Editor

A local man was injured Sunday when he wrecked on his motorcycle.

According to Estill County Deputy Sheriff Russell "Doc" Morris, Marcus J. Kirby, 24, was riding his Harley Davidson motorcycle on Richmond Road, traveling east (toward town).

Morris said witnesses told him that Kirby had been swerving in and out of traffic all along the roadway.

A 2004 Chevrolet pickup truck being driving by Mark McKinley, also traveling east, slowed to a stop for a car in front of him that was making a left turn into a grocery store.

Morris said that McKinley said he saw the motorcycle approaching rapidly, in his rear view mirror. The motorcycle impacted the truck on the rear-end throwing Kirby from it. Morris said he wasn't wearing a helmet.

Kirby was flown to the University of Kentucky Medical Center by helicopter with a head injury.

A family member later told Morris that Kirby had a concussion and a severe gash to the back of his head.

Irvine Council tables noise ordinance until April meeting

By Rhonda Smyth
CV&T News Editor

The Irvine City Council is in place to make the best decisions for the city and to see that residents have services they need every day.

But they are also required to enact ordinances that protect and govern residents as well.

At a meeting at city hall Monday, City Attorney Rodney Davis presented a curfew ordinance to the council that had been brought to them a few years back, but never approved.

It is being looked at again after an Irvine man, Jim Walters, attended a council meeting and complained about young people being on the streets late at night and in the wee hours of the morning.

Mayor Ernest Farmer was ready to ask the council to vote on the first reading, but Davis didn't prepare a summary to be read and the ordinance is several pages long. He told the council he didn't know they would want to act on it at this meeting.

"I'd like to read it or hear a summary or something. I don't want to accept something without looking at it first," Councilwoman Nelle Williams said.

Councilman Tim Burkhart also said he wanted to take some time to read it and asked that it be tabled until the next meeting. The council agreed.

Farmer gave his report in which he told the council he would like to order tee shirts to commemorate Irvine's 200th birthday.

"We could sell them for a dollar more than we pay for them, or we could not make any money on them. What do you think?" he said.

Councilman Tommy "Tobo" Bryant said he would like to spend money on banners to hang around the city instead of buying tee shirts to sell.

"I like the banner idea," Williams said.

Farmer told City Clerk Robin Sewell to check the prices of banners. No decision was made on the design of tee shirts.

Sewell told the council she had applied for a $10,000 grant through Bluegrass PRIDE and received one for $6,360. It will be used to buy trash cans and recycling bins to place around the city during special events, such as the upcoming Mushroom Festival.

The council also approved two privilege licenses. One for Michael Collins to open a travel agency on Main Street and one for Staci Beeler to open a flea market on River Drive in the old Sears Building.

Around the table:
Councilman Billy Arthur asked Fire Chief Tony Murphy if the city's insurance rating had gone up because residents were telling them that there home owners insurance premiums had increased.

"We were barely in the four range on our ISO rating and since we have had all the trouble with equipment, it was increased to five. We've got just a few more little things to fix and they will come back and re-evaluate us when we call them," Murphy said. "But I didn't know of anybody whose premium went down when we went from four to five the last time."

Arthur asked him to be sure and stay on top of it and have the ratings people come back.

Arthur also asked Davis what had happened to the property that some former residents wanted to donate to the city.

"The deed has been drafted and the title search done. There was a stipulation in the agreement that if we ever wanted to do anything with it besides have a park that it would revert back to the owners and we didn't want that in. I haven't heard from them in months. But I understand they had to get like 20 signatures to transfer the deed," Davis explained.

Arthur asked him to call the owners and find out what the hold up is.

Farmer discussed a letter that he and council members received concerning Marcum & Wallace Memorial Hospital's proposed location for a helipad. When told a public hearing was scheduled for Tuesday March 27 at 9:30 a.m., Burkhart reacted.

"They are having a public hearing at 9:30 in the morning when most people are at work?" he asked.

The discussion ended and the council went into executive session to discuss litigation and later reported 'no action taken.

Ted's Frankfort Report

House, senate talk about state's budget

Current session to end next week

As house-senate negotiations to agree on a proposed executive branch budget loom next week (the session's last full week), we plowed ahead on other critical spending matters by approving a proposed transportation cabinet budget and a state road plan to carry the commonwealth through the end of this fiscal year, and the next two.

Ted Edmonds
State Representative

The transportation budget found in HB 266, which cleared the house last Friday, March 16, includes an estimated $3.5 billion for Kentucky's road needs over the next biennium. The road plan—in a separate but related bill, HB 267—would authorize around $2.8 billion in state-supported highway construction and maintenance and federally-supported construction projects through fiscal year 2014.

Projects in the Road Plan are prioritized based on special designations. The highest priority projects are those to be completed with highway bonds authorized by the General Assembly in 2009 and 2010. The bill also spells out how projects would be prioritized should any unanticipated federal highway dollars become available.

Joining HB 266 and HB 267 in the Senate now is House Joint Resolution 77. That legislation includes projects we recommend for funding between fiscal year 2015 through fiscal year 2018, the four "out" years of the Road Plan.

Combined with HB 267, the projects in the resolution make up the six-year plan the General Assembly is required to approve every two years as part of the biennial budget process. HJR 77 cleared the House by a vote of 89-4, also on March 16.

Rebuilding Kentucky communities damaged or destroyed by recent tornadoes and storms is the motivation behind legislation that passed the House on Thursday. HB 165 would offer a refund on sales and use tax paid on materials used to rebuild in storm-ravaged counties that are declared to be federal disaster areas as a result of storms that hit the state between Feb. 29 and March 3. But the legislation goes further than that.

HB 165 also reaches out to school districts and their staff in those disaster areas by allowing the state's education commissioner to waive up to 10 instructional days missed as a result of the storms. The "disaster" declaration would preserve schools' state funding, while ensuring that all school personnel receive salary, wages and benefits for those days. School personnel would make up the work, although possibly in areas different from those to which they are regularly assigned.

Senate bills that made their way through the House and to the governor's desk this week include a measure that would help prevent fatalities involving larger vans by requiring passengers in them to use seat belts.

SB 89, which was sent to the governor after passing the House 61-33 on Tuesday, was filed in response to a 2010 crash on I-65 near Munfordville that killed 10 members of a Mennonite family who were riding in a 15-seat van when it collided with a tractor trailer. Reports indicated that most of the van's passengers were not wearing seat belts at the time of the crash. Current state law only requires seat belt use in vans designed to carry 10 or fewer people.

Another Senate bill that cleared the House this week is SB 92, an agricultural bill that would create separate legal definitions for stockyards and buying stations—facilities that offer stockyard services, but are managed as a private livestock market. The bill would also set up new regulatory requirements for both stockyards and buying stations, and would require market agencies to be licensed by the Kentucky Department of Agriculture. SB 92 passed the House 93-0 and now goes to the governor for his signature.

A Senate measure that would establish a state-wide "Blue Alert" system to help law enforcement apprehend someone suspected of killing, wounding or abducting a law enforcement officer cleared the House Transportation Committee this week.

The Blue Alert system envisioned by SB 32 would broadcast identifying information similar to that sent out under the Amber Alert system now in place for missing children. Blue Alerts would be issued only upon request of a law enforcement agency after it is determined that an officer has been killed, injured, or is missing and a Blue Alert is the best response. SB 32 now goes to the full House for consideration.

The 2012 Regular Session is rapidly coming to a close. With only six legislative days left in the session at the close of business on Friday, both the House and Senate are expected to spend late nights at the Capitol all next week hashing out agreements on a proposed $19.5 state budget, the Road Plan, legislation to curb meth abuse, and other key bills that lawmakers feel need consideration before session's end.

A total of 20 bills had passed both chambers as of Thursday, but that number will likely grow exponentially over the next week. To comment on a bill, please call the toll-free Legislative Message Line at 800-372-7181. As always, you can contact me directly at 502-564-8100, ext. 81

Rhonda's Remarks

Kids really amaze me sometimes

Sometimes kids just amaze me.

A feeling of amazement is exactly what I got when I went to Estill High last week to talk to Lt. Col. Patterson about the kids in the JRROTC program.

Those young men and women come from diverse backgrounds and possibly would not have gotten to know each other, had that not come together in this program.

I don't think I have ever stood in the middle of a bunch of kids who have as much respect for their leader, Col. Patterson or their fellow students as this bunch does.

They were polite and friendly to me and seemed anxious to talk to me about each other and the program.

They are just a great bunch of kids and I am proud of them. They represent Estill County well and are very blessed to have a man like Col. Patterson as a role model.

Look for great things in the future from this group of students.

It has been my privilege over the years to interact with a lot of students in all grade levels.

I have attended events in which Estill schools' students were involved both here and elsewhere.

I can tell you that you won't find any kids anywhere that are as well behaved and downright nice as ours are.

Whether it's sports, band, cheerleading, clubs or any number of other activities in which students participate, ours are the best.

Woman arrested for attempt to slip item to inmate

By Rhonda Smyth
CV&T News Editor

An Estill County woman was arrested March 25 for attempting to slip something to her husband, a prisoner at the Estill County Jail.

Estill Deputy Sheriff Russell "Doc" Morris said he was called to the jail to arrest Tamara McQueen, 25, after she was caught trying to shove something through a hole in the outside of the jail cell in which her husband was incarcerated.

"There was a hole in the wall, which had been patched, but somebody had poked the patch out. She had two pencils taped together to make it long enough to go through the thickness of the wall and was trying to poke something through," Morris said.

He said that McQueen told him the pencil had come out of the hole and she was just trying to put it back.

Nothing was found in the cell which Morris said wasn't unusual.

"With 10 people in the cell, it was gone before anybody could look for it," he said.

Upon her arrest a female jailer searched McQueen and found a Suboxen tablet concealed in an undergarment. She was charged with attempting to promote contraband and possession of a controlled substance.

She will appear in Estill District Court on April 11.

Estill County High School Concert Band receives highest rating possible

The Estill County High School Concert Band attended the Kentucky Music Educators Association group assessment event Friday, March 23 at the new arts center at Eastern Kentucky University. They were given a distinguished rating, the highest rating possible.

The group worked throughout the semester preparing music to present to a panel of distinguished adjudicators.

The distinguished rating qualifies the group to participate in the state assessment event in April.

"This is a tremendous accomplishment for this group and for our program. All to often the attention is on the competitive marching band or groups seen in public like jazz band or pep band. Concert band is a vital part of our program because this is the music classroom where the teaching and learning really takes place," Director Jason Bowles said. "Congratulations to this group as they continue to represent Estill County among the elite in the state."

LIFESTYLE

Blissfully unaware, until last year

Saturday, March 31, is National CDH Awareness Day. For the past few months, I've never been more aware of anything in my life.

A year ago at this time, my family and I had no idea that such a day exists. We had never heard of CDH.

Now we have. Last May, a routine ultrasound revealed that our grandson had an uncommon birth defect called congenital diaphragmatic hernia. We were stunned.

How did this happen? Why did this happen? What would this mean to the newest addition to our family?

It didn't take much research to learn that the condition is very serious, and in most cases, is life-threatening without quick intervention. We learned that even with the best of prenatal care, the baby's delivery and the first few days of his life would be rocky.

Clay was born in October. The nurses quickly whisked him away to be intubated and he seemed to stabilize quickly.

Thus began the "honeymoon period" that, as predicted, only lasted about a day.

Then Clay's condition began to deteriorate rapidly, and the decision was made to hook him up to a scary-looking heart/lung bypass machine that would mechanically pump and filter his blood so that surgery could be done.

It was during surgery that doctors discovered Clay only had a "nub" of a left lung. They gave him a chance and did the repair surgery.

For ten long scary days, Clay was sustained by the ECMO machine and countless prayers. Things didn't look good for him.

But he hung on...and on. At six weeks old, Clay was doing better than anyone ever thought he would. His progress was rapid, and he was given a trial off the hospital vent.

That didn't work so well. At about two months old, the decision was made to perform a tracheotomy.

Over the course of the next

Lisa Bicknell

three months, Clay was given several more trials on home ventilators. He has yet to be able to handle that transition.

Still, he has continued to grow and thrive. After all the pain medicines and sedatives were finally weaned, his true personality began to emerge. His adorable smile and bright eyes have won the hearts of many. He looked happy and healthy.

Just last week, Clay's vent settings were getting slowly turned back, in hopes that he'd finally be able to transition off the hospital vent. He seemed to be handling the changes well. Maybe home wasn't so far away after all.

Then Friday threw a major speed-bump in the road. Within the space of a few hours, Clay went from smiling and happy to whimpering in pain. He began to vomit violently.

An x-ray showed no sign of reherniation, so other reasons for his sudden decline were explored. Some of his symptoms pointed to a UTI, and antibiotics were prescribed. However, Clay became increasingly distressed. A second x-ray revealed that his hernia patch had not held, that bowel and stomach were again pressing into his chest cavity.

His fifth-month birthday was not happy as the hospital crew worked tirelessly to get him stabilized.

The past few days have been like pushing a rewind button. Tubes and IVs have been reinserted. Clay is again heavily sedated and still. He's back on many of the medicines he was prescribed those first few days of his life.

Hernia repair surgery has been put on hold until the infection is gone and Clay's in a more stable condition. The shock of the sudden reherniation has caused all kinds of distress to his little body.

This latest obstacle really threw us all for a loop. We had warning of the first hernia--not this one. Sure, we knew it could happen...but we really hoped it wouldn't.

By Saturday, National CDH Awareness Day, we hope to have the surgery behind us and Clay on the mend again.

Yes, we are way too familiar with the existence of CDH, but we still won't know how...or why. Apparently not much is known about the cause of this devastating defect or how to prevent it.

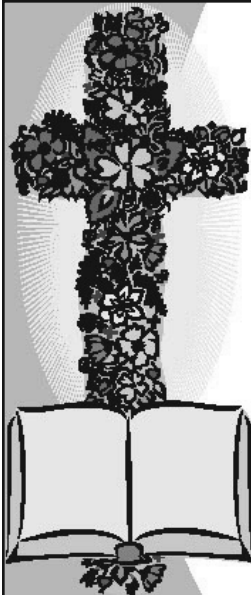

What I do know is that it hurts. It hurts babies, and it hurts their families. I wouldn't wish it on anyone.

While there is much we don't know and understand about CDH, we do know that God is with us, that He hears our desperate cries, and He sustains us.

ENCOURAGING WORD: A POIGNANT REMINDER

Howard Coop
Guest Columnist

It was an extremely emotional experience, and one that I will remember for a long time.

On a beautiful Sunday morning, I stood at the crest of the Mount of Olives and looked westward across the Kidron Valley toward Jerusalem. The brilliant sun glistened on the golden dome of the Dome of the Rock, a mosque that occupies the spot in the Esplanade of the Temple where the Temple of Solomon once stood. A road, centuries old, from Bethany and the Jordan valley to Jerusalem crosses the Mount of Olives and winds its way over the western slope of the mountain.

As I surveyed that scene, I remembered another Sunday morning and the events surrounding it that occurred nearly two thousand years ago at, or near, the place where I was standing. On that ancient Sunday morning, Jesus, riding a borrowed donkey on which no one had ridden, met a large and enthusiastic crowd of supporters who welcomed him warmly, gladly, and noisily to Jerusalem. They waved palm branches taken from nearby palm trees, and many in the crowd “spread their cloaks on the road” ahead of him. Most, if not all, of them shouted enthusiastically, “Hosanna in the highest!” Then, when he entered Jerusalem, “All the city was stirred.”

But that enthusiasm and emotional support faded quickly. Before the week was gone, the loud shouts of “Hosanna” were gone, and they had been replaced with, “Crucify him! Crucify him!” One of his trusted and closest friends vehemently denied that he ever knew him, and another trusted friend placed a kiss of betrayal upon his cheek.

Palm Sunday commemorates the Triumphal Entry of Jesus into Jerusalem, and the day is celebrated joyfully annually. But the day is a poignant reminder of a significant fact: Emotional enthusiasm, expressive as it may seem to be, is totally inadequate. It doesn’t last when the going gets rough. When there is nothing more, loyalties change quickly and abruptly for no good reason.

Kentucky is back to take on Louisville

Austin Lay
Sports Writer

The University of Kentucky Wildcats are headed back to New Orleans to play in the Final Four for the second year in a row after beating the Baylor Bears by twelve last Sunday afternoon. This Final Four will be different than any other one that the ‘Cats have played in; this one is against Rick Pitino and his “Redbirds.” The second best rivalry game in all of basketball, only behind Kentucky and North Carolina, who we nearly had the chance to meet in the championship game. The thing that amazes me about Kentucky making the Final Four for the second year in a row, is that only three years ago, we were beat out in the second round of the NIT. That season would end Billy Gilispie’s tenure as head coach of the Wildcats. I feel that “the Billy G. era” was the worst two year span in the history of Kentucky Basketball. I don’t understand how you can take such a historic and marveled program and make it take a nose dive into the ground. The University of Kentucky should never be in the NIT, EVER.

A program with seven NCAA Tournament titles, should never even be considered as a team in the NIT. After the Gilespie failure, Mitch Barnhart started looking for another coach, he found one in John Calapari. Since Calipari took over the program, The Wildcats have won 2 SEC Championships and have been the runner in the third tournament he coached. The ‘Cats have been to at least the elite eight in all three years Cal’ has coached, in the past two years they’ve made it to the final four for the first time since 1996. The Wildcats only need to win two more games to become NCAA Champions for the eighth time in school history. One of the two teams standing in their way is Pitino, in what will be one of the most anticipated final four matchups in tournament history. These two teams, fan bases, coaches, mascots, and cities hate each other. ESPN and CBS will play this game up to be the biggest game of the year, and in all honesty, it probably is. Kentucky will have to defend the Cardinals without fouling, and they will have to hit most of their field goals and free throws. I can’t wait to see Kentucky end the season with a 38-2 and win their eighth NCAA championship

Estill boys 2-2 after first four games of the season

The Estill Engineers baseball season got off to a good start with a win over Madison Southern, 5-2 at home. They followed that with a loss to Madison Central 10-3. The boys traveled to Jackson County where they put another game in the win column, 11-5. They followed that one with another loss. Montgomery County delivered a crushing defeat 17-1. The Engineers next home game is against Rockcastle County tonight.
